

A classic stye, note there is no oedema or cellullitic change to the rest of the eyelid. This would be appropriate to give antibiotic ointment to. A chalazion looks similar but without the associated redness.