

Despite the significant pain there are often very few clinical signs until you apply fluorescein drops and use a blue light which highlights the defect in the epithelium.